

A great man once said “A life lived without purpose or value, the kind in which one doesn’t know the reason why one was born, is joyless and lackluster. To just live, eat and die without any real sense of purpose surely represents a life pervaded by the world of animality- on the other hand, to do, create or contribute something that benefits others, society and ourselves, and dedicate ourselves as long as we live up to that challenge, that is a life of true satisfaction, a life of value. It is a humanistic and lofty way to live.
